January - 23 April 2010

A display showing some resources for research into African masks, how Western and African art have influenced each other, with a modernised mask sculpture by Patrick Muyembe (Access Art, Design and Photography).

This piece of art work originates from the study of African culture and its mineral wealth. At the same time it also represents me as an African in Western culture. The idea was to modernise the mask and juxtapose Western and African Culture.

Designed and made by Patrick Muyembe

The piece of art was inspired from the ideas of African traditional art of several countries. At the same time, it was inspired by the art of African traditional culture. The idea was to combine the mask and sculpture. Material used: African Clay.
