Administrative history

The Central Photographic Section was based in Anglesea Road Building until 29 May 1996 when it moved to premises in Middle Street. The section occupied studio space at the Rotunda from August 2000 until 2004.

The Central Photographic Section merged first with the Educational Development Unit and later on 10 August 1987 with Printing.

The Central Photographic Section finally closed on 30 July 2004.

When transferred to the archive, the collection was already organised into envelopes, folders and boxes, many of which had been allotted titles. The original titles have been preserved, as well as where possible the order of prints inside the boxes and folders. However, the uncatalogued photographs had been used before the appointment of an archivist and some disturbance seems to have occurred.
